Call for Applications

Master of Arts Degree
Department of Childhood Studies

This fall, join our nationally and internationally renowned faculty in the exciting and innovative Department of Childhood Studies at Rutgers University—Camden, NJ, USA

Robust scholarships and funding assistance are available to qualified applicants.

Applications
Applications are now being accepted for the Master of Arts (M.A.) program in Childhood Studies for the Fall 2020 term.

Deadline
Applications submitted by July 15, 2020 will receive full consideration for admission and funding for Fall 2020 term. Please visit the Graduate Admissions website.

The Master of Arts in Childhood Studies equips practitioners and beginning scholars with the skills and knowledge to understand and to address the challenges that confront children. The program prepares its graduates to conduct research with and about children, formulate social policy on behalf of children and their families, and work effectively with diverse populations of children throughout the world.

Students from our program have gone on to careers in youth services, education, social service administration, family services and health-related occupations, or have entered doctoral programs.

Courses Include
• Health Disparities
• Theories of Childhood
• Girlhood Studies
• Children’s Rights
• Literary/Cultural Constr. Childhood
• Child Growth and Development

Background
The Department of Childhood Studies at Rutgers--Camden, New Jersey, opened its doors in September 2007 as the first Ph.D. granting program in Childhood Studies in North America. Department faculty represent diverse areas of scholarship who, through research, public engagement and teaching, contribute to the expansion of this dynamic and growing field.

Graduate students can now earn a Certificate in Data Science. For more information visit our website.

Please contact Dr. Sarada Balagopalan, Director of Graduate Studies, with any questions regarding graduate applications.